CONCRETE ROAD CONTRACT LET

New Haven Company to Lay Pavements on Franklin, North Main and Thames Streets—Work to Start Immediately After Labor Day—Bids Submitted to the Public Works Committee.

The public works committee have decided to award the contract for the construction of the mixed concrete roads on Franklin, North Main and Thames streets to the Connecticut Massam company of New Haven, the same company which laid the present pavement on Franklin street.

The Massam company's proposition calls for $165 per square yard complete, including a five year guarantee bond. The bids submitted by other companies follow:

Connecticut Engineering and Contracting company also bid prices for using one-half gravel concrete and one-half trap rock, amounting to $160 per square yard.

The Massam company has agreed to send their machinery here and will start work immediately after the fair. The work on Franklin street will be started at the end of the present pavement and will extend up to the new hall, where it was being torn down as a trusty, and he had only 15 days more to serve.

John Hedgegman, alias Nathan Harvey, 47 years old, an escaped prisoner, arrested here by the Norwich police for the Worcester authorities, was taken here by the police on Wednesday by Sheriff A. F. Richardson, who came here for him.

BRANFORD FARMS TO EXHIBIT AT FAIR.

Five Thousand Dollar Berkshire Boar to Be on Exhibition.

When Ellis Parker Butler, the well known writer of humorous stories, wrote the quaint tale which he called Pigs is Pigs, he never had in mind the sleek, aristocratic, and well-bred pig that is raised by the up-to-date farmer of the present day. For if he had, he would have been obliged to call his story by some other name such as Pigs is Success or Pigs is the Difference Between Success and Failure on the Farm.

Show me the pig pen on the farm, and I will tell you the kind of man the farm owner is, said a well known breeder of high class pigs recently. If the pen is well taken care of, with a light roof and clean, so will the other departments of the farm be. On the other hand, if the pen is a ramshackle collection of weather-beaten boarding, loose and full of holes, with a wallow of mud for the pigs to roll and root around in, then the balance of the farm will be looked after in the same slaphash manner.

In taking up improved swine production there is much for the farmer to learn, the improved methods of raising and fattening hogs, the value of forage crops, sanitation, good management in handling swine, methods of home curing of meat, and in doing so one obtains a broader and better view of farm life and naturally a better farmer.

The boys' pig clubs started in most of the states under the county agents are doing much to improve swine production and is distinctively an outgrowth of the boys' corn club, which is an economic necessity among some of the corn club members, as it gave them an opportunity of marketing some of their corn through the pig and further encouraged the diversification of crops which was being urged upon the boys as well as upon the farmers.

One feature of the boys' work in connection with these pig clubs is the educational value of the work. The parents have voluntarily permitted their children to join a club; nevertheless, they have finally admitted that they have learned as much or more good from the work as the boy did. Many farmers have absolutely changed their methods of handling hogs since seeing the results of the son's work with one or more pigs. It has also induced many farmers to purchase their first time some registered livestock.

In 1914 there were 185 hogs exhibited at the state fair in the state of Louisiana by members of the boys' pig clubs. These hogs were judged and awarded prizes in the boys' pig club classes and those boys who exhibited the best hogs were given a certificate of merit. The fair association were permitted to show their pigs in the open classes against the breeders' pigs. Several prizes were won by the boys' pigs in such competition. After the fair some of the breeders have been heard to say that they were boys from showing their pigs in the open classes during the following year.

It is the hope of the county agents by the fair association. The fact that such a request was made was one of the greatest compliments that could be paid to pig raising.

To show the interest that is taken by boys in these pig clubs, the following story is told by one of the county agents in the state of Texas: Little Jack Starr of Midland, Tex., wanted to join the pig club in his county. He had a pig named runt of the litter. The pig was 10 weeks old and weighed 29 pounds. When Jack tried to join the club he was told that he was only 6 years old and was too young to be a member. Not discouraged, however, he went to the county fair and exhibited his pig. The pig was judged and awarded a prize. The fair association were permitted to show their pigs in the open classes against the breeders' pigs. Several prizes were won by the boys' pigs in such competition. After the fair some of the breeders have been heard to say that they were boys from showing their pigs in the open classes during the following year.
